► The Unity Theory

Consciousness connects each of us to both the physical and non-physical world, and when we break through the illusion of separateness, we tap into a stream of limitless possibilities

By Laurie Ann Levin, PsyD

AIR IS NOT WHAT WE HAVE THOUGHT THROUGH ALL these years of schooling and wondering about in physical science. Air is filled with consciousness. All living beings and organisms require oxygen, nitrogen, argon, carbon dioxide and methane, yet those gases alone do not require life.

When life exists, there is a mediated exchange between air and the life form. As that exchange results, there is an extended aura of etheric consciousness expanded for use. It is in this expanded use that we begin.

Open your ears to hear in a new way. Please open your eyes to see in a new way. We are filled with consciousness that surrounds our being all through our day and night. Visitations to our expansion come through open exchange in conversation, open exchange in discovery, but also in just existing. At each moment of life, and beyond, there is an alternate expanded life that our corporal bodies explore — the air.

Air reasons, listens, explains and hears sounds, energy, vibrations and telepathic waves, all resulting in consciousness. We can dip into that field of air and pick up multitudes of information. Some of that information is meant for us directly and some of that information is just there. We can be attuned to simple and complex expressions of consciousness. Our mediation of that information is pronounced in some and veiled with others. We can tune in or tune out, but the consciousness is still there.

Open channels of receptivity are making their way into all living organisms. There is a group soul that expresses simple messages like run, danger, alarm. There are group soul directions that assist in upping the ante to our already informed lives, like read this, look at this, join them. Much of our intuition comes from group soul consciousness that helps organize our physical, dream and spiritual lives.

The gorgeous symbiosis of all living beings and organisms is in part because there is a unified consciousness binding all. That unification transmitting at rapid rates and picked up by many, gives us a new understanding of oneness. We are tightly woven together in a living worldwide web of consciousness.

The computer era has duplicated mechanically what we have been doing all along. Through energetic transference and transmission we are living in sync at all times. There is no chaos and all is pre-known before the actions take place. We are already in the future before the future exists. Physical expression is the suffix. Physical expression is important as a definitive extension to all that transpires, but the expression of life has a different arc of expression than once thought. We have traditionally begun with thought and then action. Now we can see that our thought may have indeed been inspired by millions of information bits of consciousness that have called us to action. We never act alone. We are a group soul. Each of us had a role to play to express life and all that we need to be.

We are in fact a group. We have always been a group and act as a group. We are one and have an illusion of separateness to distinguish ourselves in purpose. We explore a group in ways to facilitate more excitement, yet it is a replication of how we have always worked. Nothing is unknown. We are one.

Listen now, without your ears, and hear the consciousness of all express itself.

All is known without saying or action punctuating it as complete. We are a unit and act as a unit all the time. All living beings are involved with each other at phenomenally rapid rates of life playing itself out and regarding itself as separate, but the exchange is so profound and rapid that the consciousness is one woven pulsating expression. We can revere, reverberate and reveal, but we are all one being and one expression of loving regard.

Yes, love is a component of consciousness if we open the definition of love to include all that is and all that will be in concert to a greater ideal of existence. With this new look at consciousness, we can observe the exchange and interplay with an understanding of group purpose so complex that it baffles all of our previously known existence. We are a unit that also begins to expand beyond our universe to unknown realms and beyond. Gases with consciousness expand with their information to regions beyond comprehension. Gas is a conductor and facilitator, but not the only encoder of consciousness and group actions.

We are also surrounded by consciousness of non-physical beings. Although these beings have no corporal body as we know it, they have an etheric electro-magnetic force that also holds millions of bits of information, consciousness and acceptance of the physical worlds. These also work symbiotically for the betterment of all.

Life as we know it becomes ineffable and vast. We are beings that have begun a steep climb together and now are realizing that all is easier than we thought. We are one. We are to trust in the divine order and accept our union. Listen again without our ears and see the perfection in all that is known.

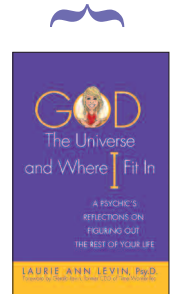

Although this is a triumph, we are not without our questions. All that we have been taught is with err, and we are now in an age of enormous acceptance. Please underscore acceptance. If one of us does not feel the perfection, we cannot open the gates to a newer perspective of “one.”

In that joined regard, we alter the universes to a higher octave of love. Love is not loosely used, but rather experienced as protection, unification, trust and co-creation. We are bound by divine acceptance and can together result in a new reverence for life as one.

Laurie Ann Levin, PsyD, is the Founder and CEO of Moonview Sanctuary in California, which grew out of the practice of mixing traditional psycho-analytic theories with a newer understanding of intuition. Dr. Laurie Ann Levin teaches that people can call on their higher selves, deceased ancestors, angelic realms, God (as one understands the Divine) and/or universal consciousness at any time to help them in this earthly life, a practice she calls Soul Communion™. Soul Communion embraces all religions, includes all belief systems and alternate realms, and transcends time and space. She is also the author of “God, The Universe and Where I Fit In: A Psychic’s Reflections on Figuring out the Rest of Your Life.” EE
